DR. JING LIN (LOTEM)

HEBREW ACADEMY

Dr. Jing Lin (Lotem) is an esteemed scholar and educator specializing in Jewish studies, Hebrew literature, and Jewish philosophy. With an impressive academic background and a wealth of teaching experience, Dr. Lin brings her expertise to the Hebrew Team at Shalom Point.

Dr. Lin completed her Ph.D. in Religious Studies at Peking University, where she focused on Rabbi Saadiah Gaon's thought. She also spent time as a visiting Ph.D. student at Nanyang Technological University in Singapore, further enriching her academic journey. Her dedication to Jewish studies led her to pursue an M.A. in Jewish Studies at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Israel.

At Beijing Foreign Studies University, Dr. Lin holds the position of Senior Lecturer in the School of Asian & African Studies. She has been an influential figure within the university, serving as the Director of the Department of Hebrew Studies since 2010. Additionally, she coordinates the SIGNAL (Sino-Israel Global Network & Academic Leadership) Israel Studies Program, fostering academic connections between China and Israel.

Dr. Lin's research interests encompass various aspects of Jewish culture and identity. Her publications delve into topics such as Jewish philosophy, Hebrew literature, and the Jews of Singapore.

Notably, her work on the relationship between Spinoza and Jewish thought earned her recognition from The World Religious Cultures.

As a dedicated educator, Dr. Lin has taught a wide range of courses on Hebrew language, Hebrew language history, and Israel society and culture. Her teaching evaluations consistently reflect her outstanding abilities, with students praising her expertise and pedagogical approach.

Dr. Lin's contributions extend beyond academia. She actively engages in professional services, including her role as Secretary of Foreign Affairs at the School of Asian & African Studies. She also participated in various conferences and seminars, presenting her research on medieval Jewish thought and Judeo-Arabic culture.

Dr. Lin's commitment to promoting intercultural understanding is exemplified through her translated books, bringing Hebrew literature to Chinese readers. Her ongoing projects, such as the publication of a Chinese Dictionary in Hebrew and the China-Israel Classic Books Translation and Publication Project, demonstrate her dedication to fostering linguistic and cultural connections.

Joining the Hebrew Team at Shalom Point, Dr. Lin will undoubtedly contribute her vast knowledge and expertise to furthering Hebrew language education and promoting cross-cultural exchange. Her impressive credentials, passion for Jewish studies, and commitment to academic excellence make her a valuable addition to the team.
